We oppose any change to the current requirement for clear simple labelling of irradiated food. As consumers, we want to know exactly what we're buying, and do not want labels that hide the facts. Labelling irradiated food "cold or electronic pasteurization would be a lie. The process is not pasteurization, nor is it electronic; and such labels serve to purposely hide the truth from the consumer.

Similarly, we think dairy products made with BGH (bovine somatotropin) milk should be clearly labelled as such.
